A Message to the Congregation

An Invitation to Wait this Advent!

Westminster Friends,

December is a weird time of year, isn't it? There's all the joy and jingle bells and "Jolly Old St. Nicholas". Yet we also have endless events and full calendars, stress about family or finances or the state of the world (or all three-for-the-stress-of-one), and then we feel obligated to add-in some church which can start to feel like more 'to do'.

So, here's what I want you to do – what I'm inviting you to do this December... Pause. Wait around a bit.

That's right. Just wait.

Not the stressful waiting in lines for Santa or the Costco checkout or to just get up to the traffic light at 27th and Hwy 2 / Nebraska Parkway...

This Advent you're invited to some holy waiting.

Wait with wonder.

Wait with anticipation.

Wait with hope, peace, joy, and love.

Wait with action – filling a truck with canned goods on December 7th or by buying a gift for a child in need through the Angel Tree that runs for just a couple more weeks!

We want you to wait with excitement for the incarnate love that meets the world at Christmas. There is no better waiting we can do this Advent.

Why wait? This year our Westminster Advent theme is "The Act of Waiting," which will serve as a cause for us to pause amidst all the December busyness.

And, don't forget that at church...

- We're in Advent, not holiday Hallmark madness. We aren't going to pressure you to get your family Christmas card done – or to do one at all!
- Advent is a season of joyful build-up to the arrival of Jesus at Christmas – the joyful world-changing goodness of that baby we trust is "God-with-us."
- You belong. We are in the midst of a very hopeful journey with Ministry Architects to envision where we go as a congregation in the future. This December is a hopeful time at WPC, and with things like the Advent Workshop on 12/7 after church, the blended music-and-pageant service of 'Snapshots, Lessons, and Carols' on 12/14 which kids of all ages can participate in (contact Trish, Director of Children and Family Ministries at trish@westminsterlincoln.org), Caroling on Weds. 12/17, and Christmas Eve services at 5:00p and 7:00p. (5:00p will be a little more kid-oriented with Children's Chat).

At Westminster, I want us to be the "church that is welcoming" for all ages, and so whether you are a kid writing the Santa List, a parent juggling the holiday calendar, or an elder member anticipating seeing family, I hope you will join us this Advent! May your peppermint or gingerbread lattes be toasty and your family be well!

Grace and Peace,

Pastor Chris (chris@westminsterlincoln.org)

Look What We're Learning!

We spent a lot of time learning about Community Helpers in November! Lincoln Fire and Rescue stopped by to show us the fire trucks and teach us about fire safety. We also had our classroom post office create cards for Veteran's Day and we took advantage of the beautiful weather to walk our cards to the mailbox.

Preschool is in full Christmas mode as we decorate the school, practice our program, and learn about the birth of Jesus.

Take a look at some of the themes we're learning about in November:

Explorers Bible Study | Library | Mondays 11:00 AM

An Advent Weekday Study

Have you ever puzzled over the different accounts of the birth of Jesus in the Gospels? Each Monday during Advent a group of explorers will be meeting to discuss the Christmas accounts in the Four Gospels. This is your opportunity to experience how Christmas is observed in each through this study written by Cynthia M. Campbell. We will compare each of the Gospels to homes that Christians visit. Together we will be challenged to see Christmas from the different perspectives offered in each house as they further reflect on the mystery of Jesus. Won't you join us in the library at 11 a.m. beginning Monday December 1?

Hearts, Hands, & Hugs | Library | Wednesdays 1 – 3 PM

Hearts & Hands is a fun-loving group that meets every Wednesday in the church library. All needle work folks are welcome to come visit and see what you're missing! Laughter is free. All yarn donations are welcome! Questions? Call Dorrie Gage at 402-730-9676.

Westminster's gift to the planet

Remember that there's an earth care-ful way to dispose of the styrofoam that shows up at this gift giving time of year. WPC has been partnering with Plastilite Corporation in Omaha. Plastilite is a creator of some of that foam, but (thank God for them) they take it back and reuse it.

The collection bin will soon appear by the east doors and will be there through February. Thanks in advance for the trouble it is to keep this material out of the landfill.

Note: Must be clean and rigid. No food containers or egg cartons.

Calvin & Knox at the Great Groundbreaking of 1925

Calvin and Knox had never seen so many humans in one place.

The year was 1925, and the grassy lot at 2110 Sheridan Blvd was buzzing with excitement. Westminster Presbyterian Church was about to break ground, and everyone had gathered—well, everyone except the two tiny mice peeking out from behind a shovel pile.

"Calvin," Knox whispered, "why do humans need so many shovels? Are they planning to dig to the other side of the world?"

"No, Knox," Calvin said with a dramatic sigh. "This is a groundbreaking ceremony. It means they're finally starting to build our new home."

Knox gasped. "A home? With snacks?"

"With worship, Knox."

"And snacks?" he repeated, hopeful.

Calvin didn't answer.

Just then, the minister stepped forward, lifted a shiny ceremonial shovel, and the crowd leaned in.

Knox leaned in too—too far—lost his balance, and tumbled down the dirt pile, landing with a plop right at the feet of the front row.

Calvin slapped a paw over his eyes. "Oh no."

Thankfully, Knox was small and blended in with the dust. Humans thought it was just a leaf. (A leaf that squeaked and ran back to Calvin.)

The moment everyone had been waiting for arrived. The minister pressed the shovel into the soil. The crowd cheered.

Calvin stood tall. "Knox, you are witnessing history. The first scoop of dirt for the future Westminster." Knox nodded solemnly. "It's beautiful."

Then he frowned.

"That scoop was way too small. They're never going to finish at that rate."

Before Calvin could stop him, Knox scurried forward and grabbed a tiny acorn shell shovel he'd been saving for "important business." He marched right up beside the big ceremonial shovel, puffed out his chest, and started digging with all his might.

A few children in the crowd noticed the dirt flicking out from a mysterious mouse-sized hole.

"Look! A helper!" one laughed.

Knox dug faster, flinging dirt everywhere—onto Calvin, onto passing shoes, nearly onto the minister's pant leg.

"Knox!" Calvin squeaked in horror. "Stop digging!" But Knox was in the zone.

Finally, Calvin grabbed him by the tail and dragged him back just in time.

"Hey!" Knox protested. "I was being productive."

Calvin sighed, brushing soil off his whiskers. "You nearly dug your way into the dedication photo."

The ceremony ended with applause, prayers, and a promise: a beautiful new church would rise right there on Sheridan.

As the humans left, Calvin and Knox sat together on the edge of the freshly turned soil.

"Calvin?" Knox asked softly. "Do you think this place will feel like home?"

Calvin smiled. "I think it already does."

"And," Knox added proudly, holding up his acorn shovel, "I helped."

Calvin shook his head. "Knox... you dug a hole the size of a walnut."

"A very important walnut," Knox insisted.

Reflections from the National Queer Presbyterian Gathering

By Kathy Rohwedder, Elder at Westminster
Presbyterian Church

In November I had the privilege of attending the very first National Queer Presbyterian Gathering at the Presbyterian Center in Louisville. As a Westminster member and elder, and as someone who cares deeply about belonging, justice, and the future of the church, this gathering was both a personal blessing and a profound learning experience.

Nearly 80 LGBTQIA+ Presbyterians from across the country came together for three days of worship, workshops, storytelling, and community-building. From the moment we arrived, the atmosphere was one of radical welcome — a place where joy, healing, and honest conversation were all encouraged.

A Space of Courage and Joy

The opening session set the tone: we named our hopes, laughed together, and made commitments to honor vulnerability and protect one another's stories. For many of us, being in a church space where our whole selves were affirmed — without hesitation or conditions — was deeply moving.

Workshops ranged from Queering Worship and Spiritual Direction for Queer Christians to Intersectionality and Liberation. Each session invited us to imagine what the church can look like when LGBTQIA+ people are not merely included, but centered and celebrated.

What the Church Needs to Hear

One of the most important moments for me was a conversation around what queer people want the church to understand. Themes that emerged included:

- Belonging is more than acceptance — it is being woven into the life and leadership of the church.
- Safety depends on courage, visibility, and clear support.
- Queer joy is sacred — an act of resistance and hope.

These were not complaints; they were invitations. Invitations for the church to grow, to listen, and to embody Christ's welcome more fully.

A Call to Action

Before the gathering ended, participants created a "to-do list" for the wider denomination — practical steps to strengthen welcome, improve equity, and ensure that congregations have resources to support LGBTQIA+ members and leaders. It was energizing to see so much commitment and creativity in one room.

Coming Home to Westminster

I returned home grateful — grateful for Westminster's commitment to hospitality, grateful for the ways our congregation continues to stretch and grow, and grateful for the chance to witness what the Spirit is doing within the wider church.

This gathering reminded me that the work of inclusion is ongoing, and that we are called not only to open our doors but to open our hearts. As an elder, I look forward to bringing what I learned back to Westminster, helping us deepen our welcome and continue embodying Christ's love for all of God's people.
